- Feminist Identity Reflection in Japanese Female Undergraduates through Discourse Analysis

Tomoko Sugihashi, Lecturer/Kristie Sage, Lecturer

Sumiko Miyafusa, Research Associate

This research investigates contemporary feminist research themes by asking SWU students to examine, describe and comment on stock media images of females. Data collected from this content analysis is further analyzed via corpus analysis. Recurrent vocabulary across images and specific student cohorts detected will be analysed considering the variable of their selected program for the Boston Campus.

- iPad for Classroom Use 101

Kevin Ryan, Professor

Faculty were introduced in a workshop format to setup procedures for iPads in the classroom to make better use of the department's class set of 30. We began with teachers connecting their iPad to our wi-fi network to access the Internet. We used the Internet to demonstrate a typical use, a Classroom Response System to monitor student understanding and increase participation. Then we explored other applications (Apps) that are installed on the iPad with suggestions on how to use them in class.
